In the historic center of Gallipoli, pearl of the Ionian sea, this elegant apartment of about 180 sqm, hidden among its narrow streets, full of churches, shops and restaurants, has an independent access. A courtyard introduces a prestigious building characterized by local architectural details from Salento. The property includes a small and suggestive altar, embellished with twisted columns in local Lecce stone. The house, recently renovated, has a large living room, a slightly elevated kitchen overlooking a bright and private terrace, perfect for convivial outdoor dining. Moreover, there is a bathroom, a bedroom with an en-suite bathroom, and further 2 bedrooms. The property is decorated by numerous references to the culture of Salento, including wonderful vaulted ceilings with fair-faced stones, mosaics depicting medieval scenes, terracotta details and iron railings. Thanks to its location, on the second and last floor, this property enjoys a large terrace having the same size as the house below and a breathtaking view of the bay of Gallipoli. The features of this property, its conformation, the dynamism offered by the various levels, and its many details make it ideal both for a family looking for a unique home of its kind, and for being included in tourist rentals, given its prestigious location, now a popular destination for many tourists. Lecce is about 35 km away while Brindisi airport is 76 km away.
